TWO CHAIRS TELLING

PRESENTS

Tom Cassidy & Desdamona

Tuesday, June 17, 7:30 p.m. at Open Eye Figure Theatre
506 East 24th Street, Minneapolis

Tom Cassidy has performed his written works at 200+ festivals, colleges, etc., and regularly performs with Cheap Theatre and at the Minnesota Fringe Festival. He is a fixture in international markets and his works have appeared in hundreds of publications, and solo and group shows. His artworks are in galleries, archives, and museums around the world. In 1976 he co-founded the Impossible, a poetry troupe recently revived by the Oregon Cultural Commission. Unambitious beyond where his pens will take him, his doppelgänger has held the same job for decades. Tom's taking time away from his 1000 Dreams in 2008 is just to participate in this special spoken word edition of Two Chairs Telling.

Desdamona is the premiere female hip hop and spoken word artist in the Midwest. A five-time Minnesota Music Award winner for Best Spoken Word Artist - it is clear that Desdamona's potent poetry and fierce hip hop delivery have been an invariable force. Desdamona has graced some of America's most famous stages including The Green Mill in Chicago, The Nuvoletian Poets Cafe in New York and The National Poetry Slam Competition. Desdamona won Honorary Slam 2004 Slam Championship. For almost a year Desdamona has hosted a weekly open mic event at the Blue Nile (Minneapolis). She also co-founded B-Girl Be, the only female hip hop festival to incorporate all four elements of hip hop: rapping, breaking, djing and graffiti.

This activity is made possible, in part, by funds provided by the Metropolitan Regional Arts Council from an appropriation by the Minnesota Legislature. And a grant from the Northlands Storytelling Network.

"I must confess I don't understand all this business," exclaimed Fred. "Why don't you tell us what you are trying to do, Grant?"

"Because I'm not sure that I know myself."

"Tell us what you think anyway," urged John.

"There's no harm in

"I'd rather not," said Grant. "If you fellows don't want to help me, more power to you. More power though, I'm perfectly willing to work it out by myself."

"No, you don't," exclaimed Fred. "If there's anything going to happen around here I want to be on hand."

"Ah' me too," said Sam eagerly. "Ah wants to be here when the brassabum discovahed. Ah'll fix dem diggers in Richmond yet."

"Good bye Sam," exclaimed Grant. "You and I will work it out together."

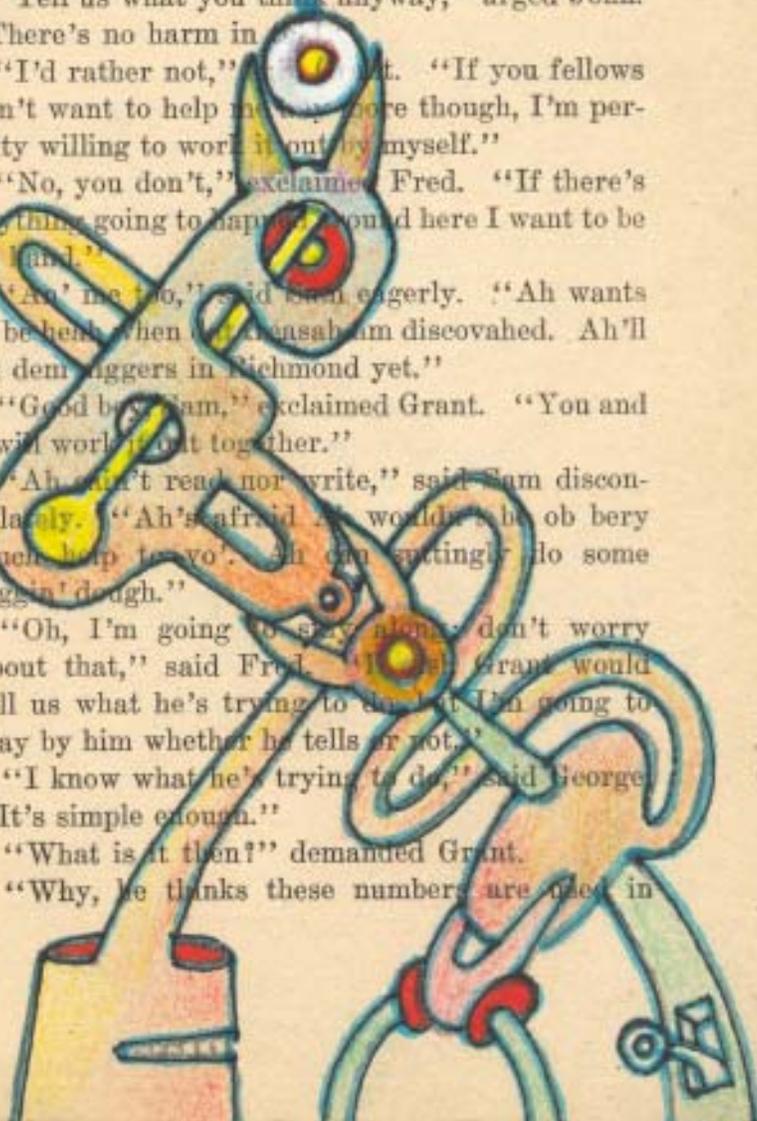

"Ah can't read nor write," said Sam disconsolately. "Ah's afraid Ah wouldn't be ob bery much help to yo'. Ah can suttin' do some diggin' dough."

"Oh, I'm going to stay alone; don't worry about that," said Fred. "I'll stay by Grant would tell us what he's trying to do, but I'm going to stay by him whether he tells or not."

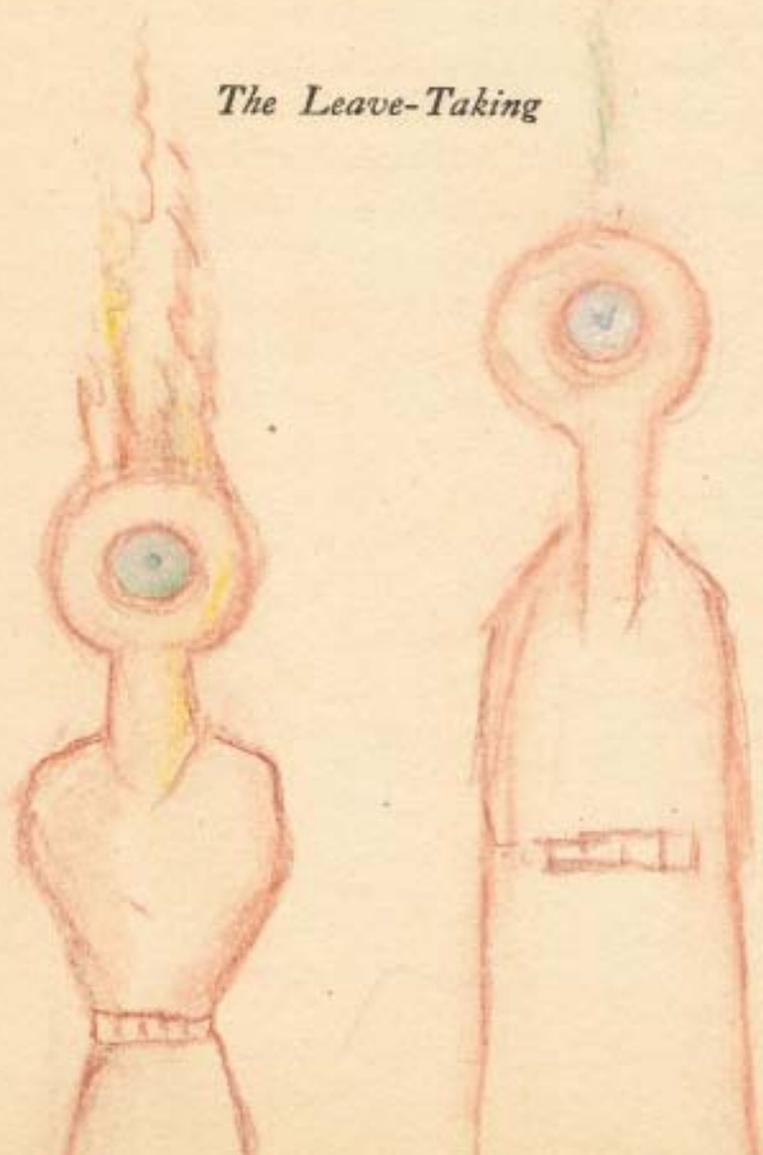

"I know what he's trying to do," said George. "It's simple enough."

"What is it then?" demanded Grant.

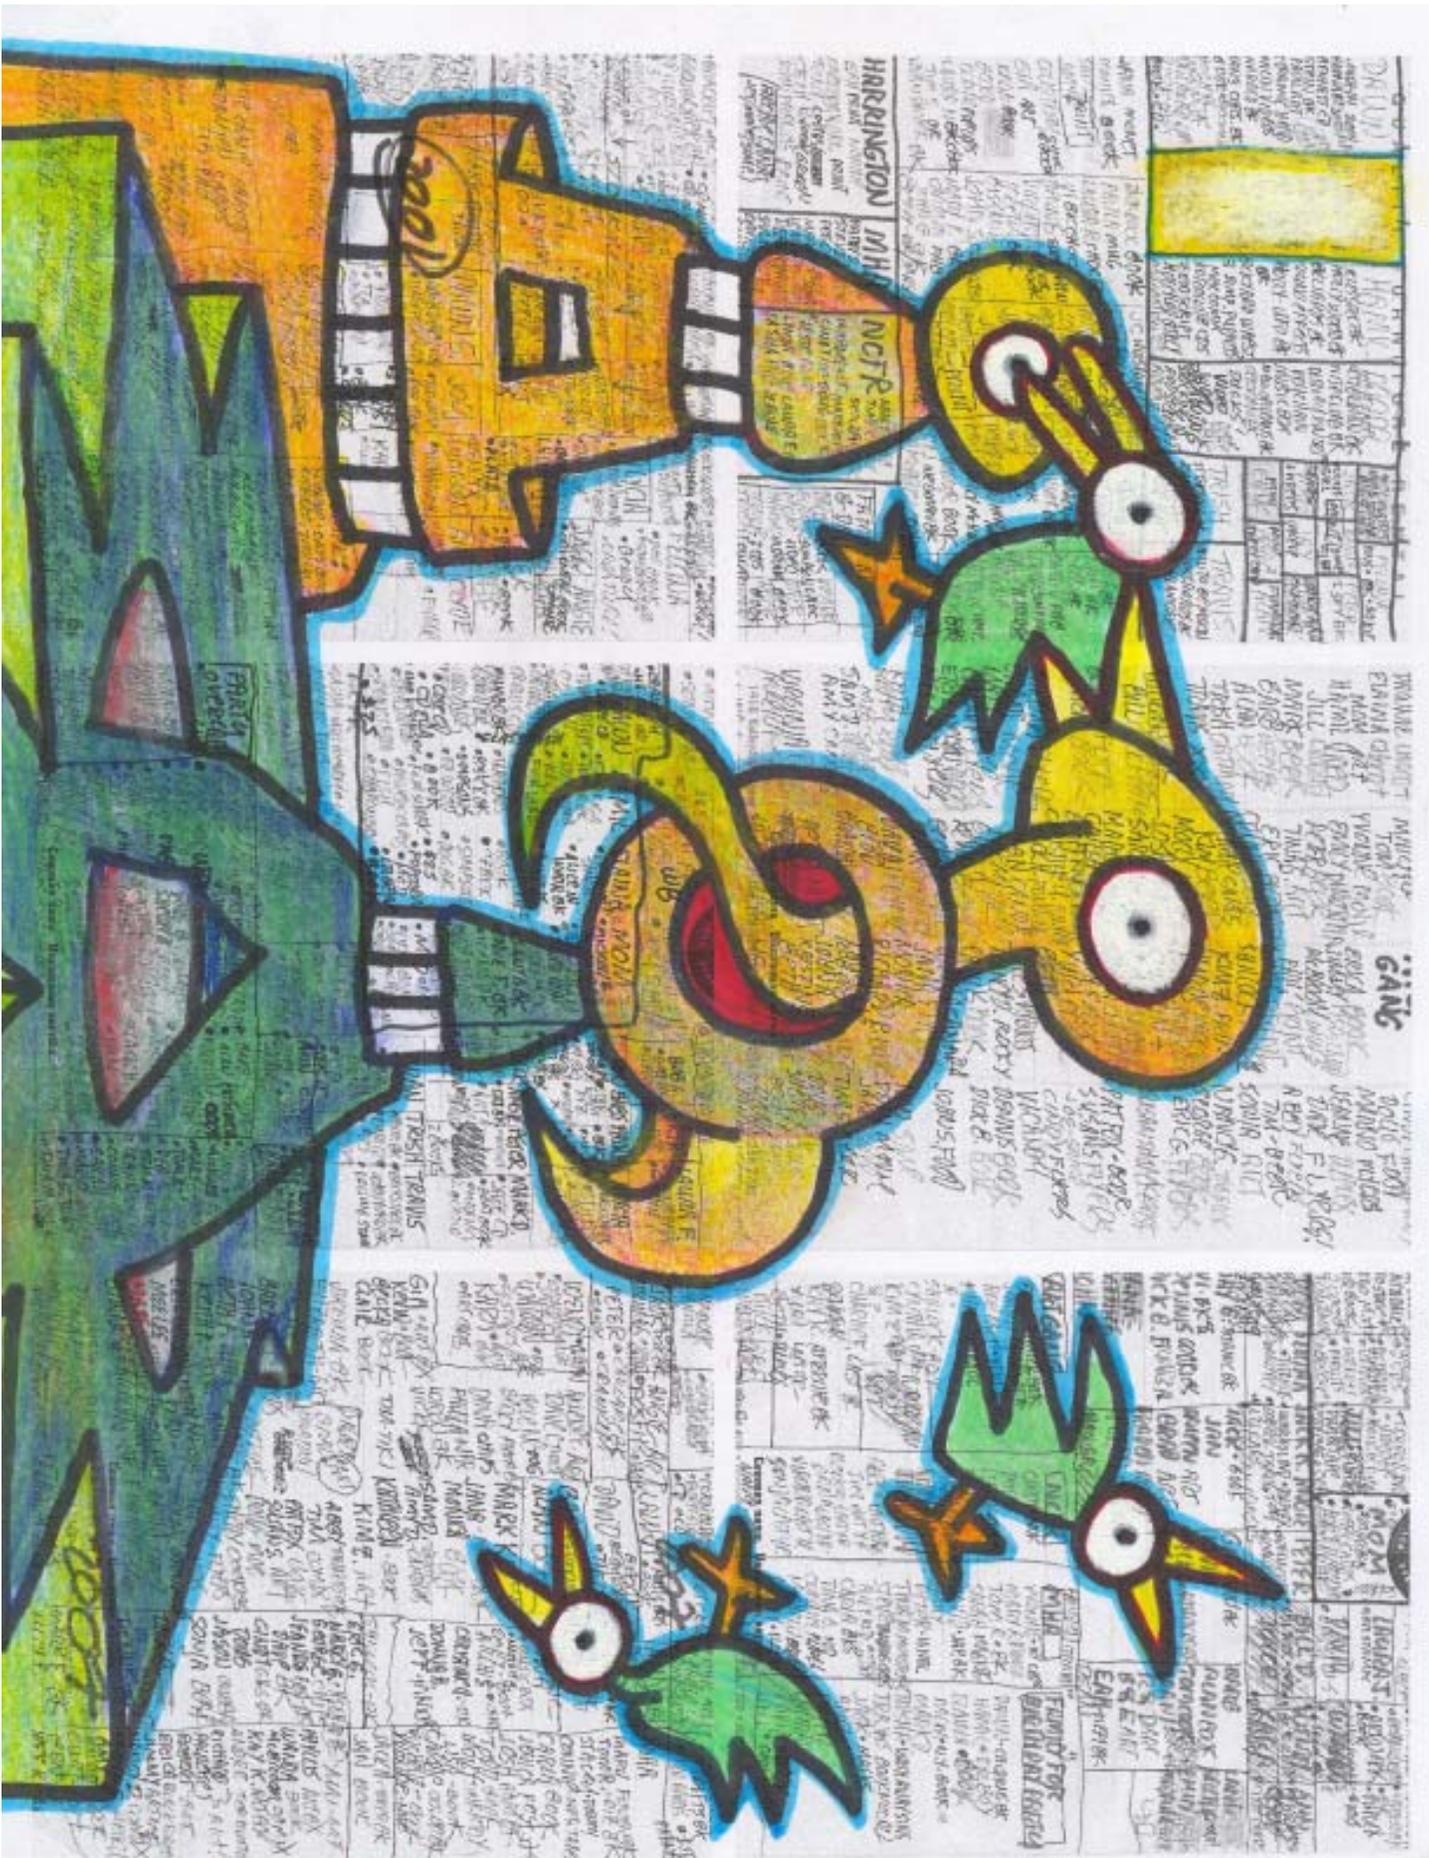

"Why, he thinks these numbers are used in be seen but the boundless ocean with not a speck of a sail or a bit of land within sight. It was a little kingdom all of its own. A quarter of a mile from shore the low rollers broke ceaselessly on a coral reef, while overhead, the gulls swept around and around, their plaintive whistle being very distinct at times.

In silence the boys stood and gazed at the ocean.

"Looks as if there were none in the world, doesn't it?" said Fred.

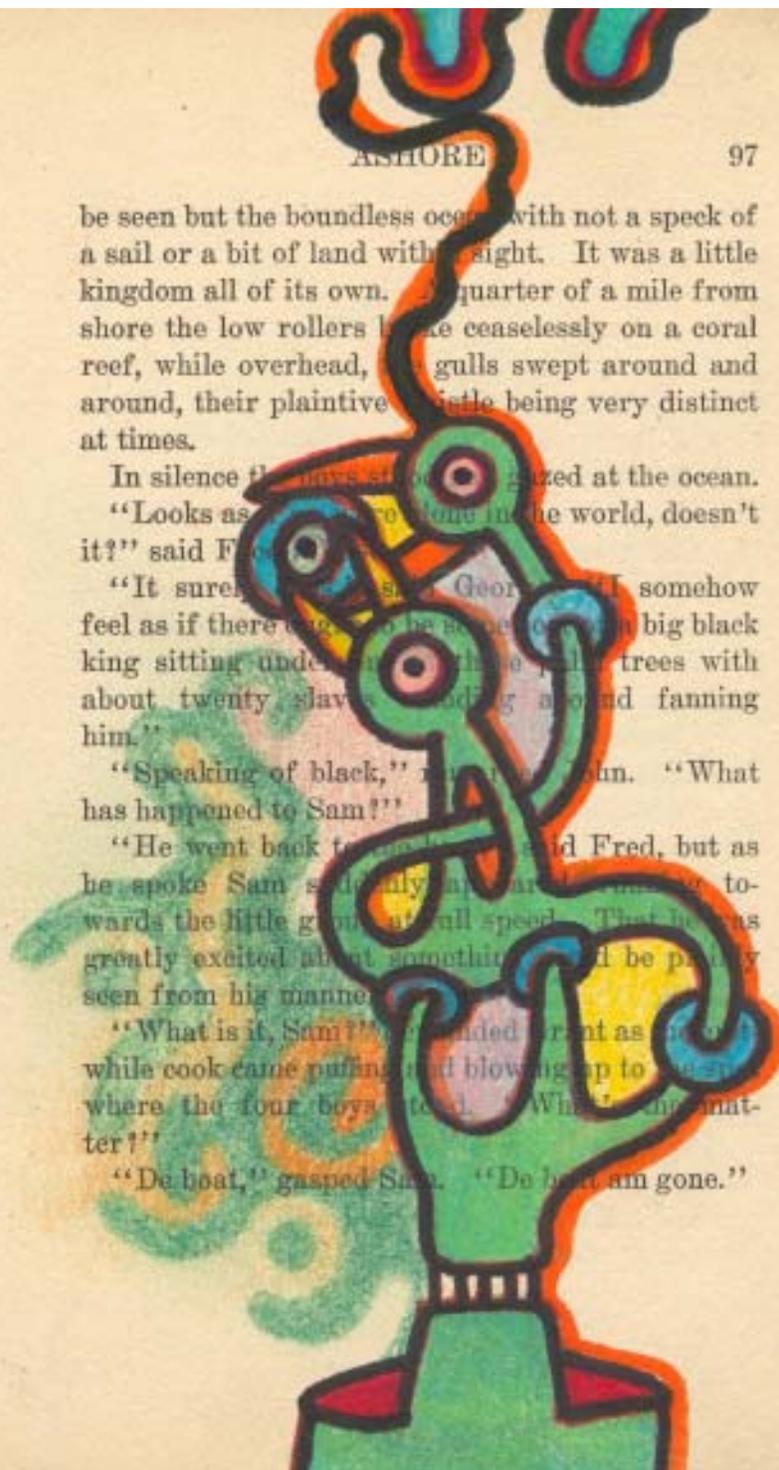

"It sure does," said George. "I somehow feel as if there ought to be some old big black king sitting under these palm trees with about twenty slaves fanning and fanning him."

"Speaking of black," remarked Sam. "What has happened to Sam?"

"He went back to the boat," said Fred, but as he spoke Sam suddenly ran across the beach towards the little gully at full speed. That he was greatly excited about something would be plainly seen from his manner.

"What is it, Sam?" demanded Brent as he ran, while cook came puffing and blowing up to the spot where the four boys stood. "What's the matter?"

"De boat," gasped Sam. "De boat am gone."
